

Watch out For Your Car if You Live in Ingleside

There are currently ten police stations that presides over the San Francisco districts. These districts are: Southern, Mission, Northern, Central, Bayview, Ingleside, Tenderloin, Taraval, Park, and Richmond.

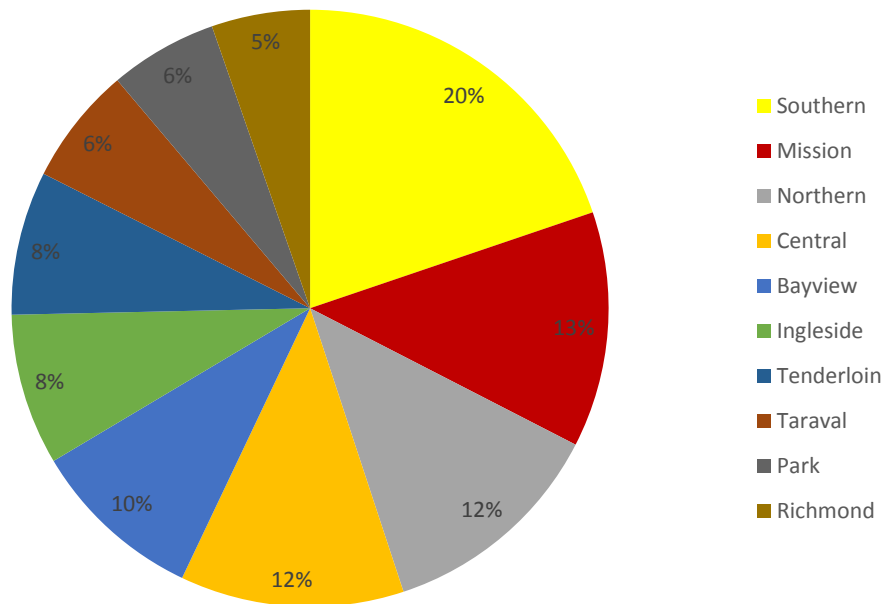

According to the Summer 2014 Police Reports, a collection of reports from June 1, 2014 to August 31, 2014, vehicle theft accounts for around 7% of all incidents that occurred in San Francisco.

While Larceny/Theft accounts for the majority of crimes that occur in the city, vehicle theft is still among the most common category of crimes.

Among these 10 police districts, one-fifth of the total crimes occur in the Southern neighborhood, making it the busiest police district of the city.

Percentage of Total Incidents by Neighborhoods

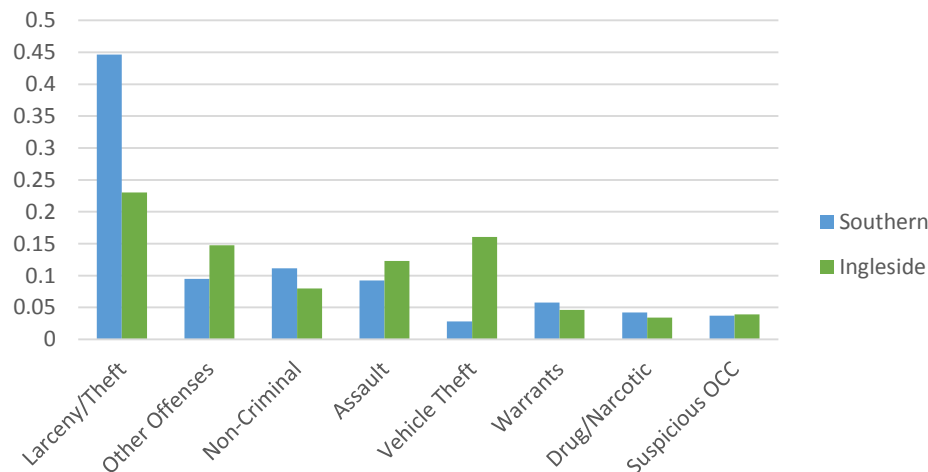

Of the 10 police districts, Ingleside is ranked 6th in terms of crime rate at 8%. In the Summer of 2014, there were a total of 2378 police reports.

However, don't be deceived by the relatively low crime rate in Ingleside. Among these reports, vehicle theft accounts for a disproportionately large percentage.

While most of the other districts average around 8% of all crimes, in Ingleside, that ratio more than doubles.

The below graph shows the comparison of incident categories between Southern, the district with the highest crime rate, to Ingleside.

Comparison of Crimes in Southern and Ingleside

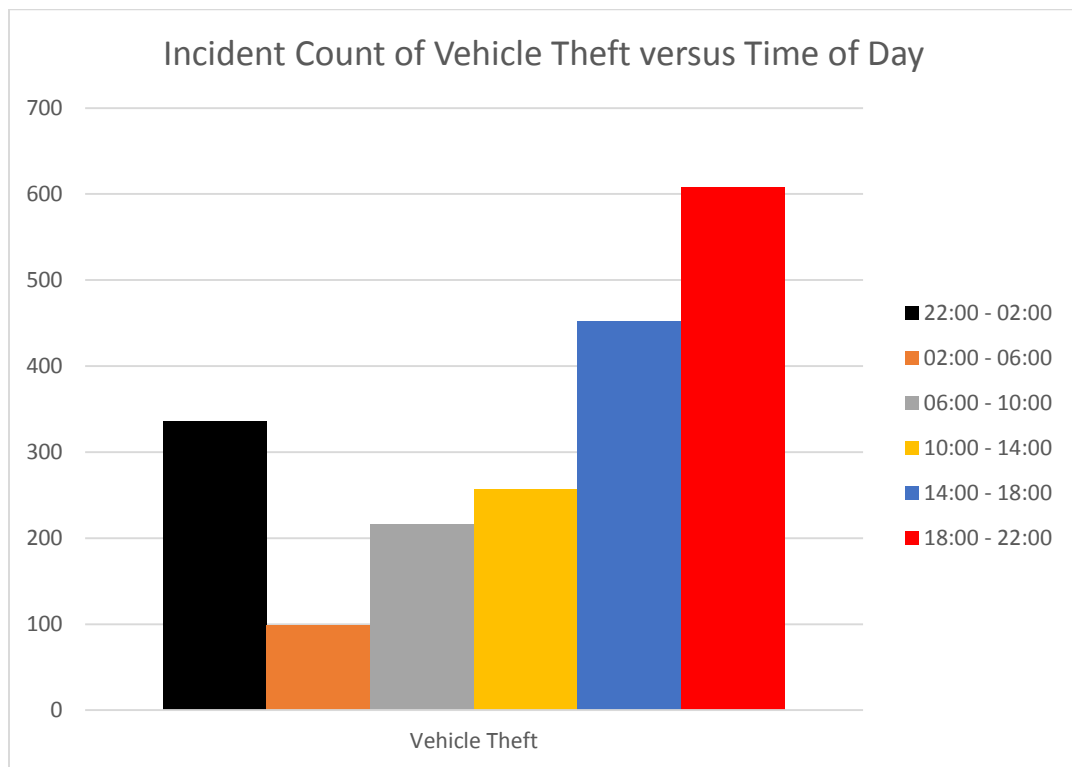

A comparison between Southern district and Ingleside district. Note how the percentage of vehicle theft in Ingleside is almost 8 times higher than that of Southern.

In fact, even if you do not factor in the relative amount of crimes in each district, Ingleside still accounts for the most vehicle theft reports in all ten districts.

As the above pie chart showed, Ingleside accounts for 8% of all San Francisco police reports. Yet the district contributes a total of almost 20% of the vehicle theft reports.

Thus, residents in Ingleside must be ever vigilant in keeping track of their cars. When is vehicle theft most likely to occur? Good question.

Below, it can be seen that most of the thefts occur just before midnight, around 8 pm. So the next time you street park in Ingleside for the night, be extra diligent.

Vehicle theft is most likely to occur between 6 pm and 10 pm. Take care to protect yourself around this time.

